REVIEW OF THE STOCK MARKET

Professional Operations
Cause Sharp Recovery
in Active Issues.

Professional operations on the buying side yesterday caused active issues to recover from early weakness and make a general advance of some 2 points from the low prices of the day. Some small profits taking in on trading final figures were seen in instances the best of the day and only a fraction better the close of last Tuesday before the Clafin failure broke the market. The volume of trading expanded from Monday's record low figures to around 260,000 shares, and the list of securities traded in was fairly broad. Bonds, too, were more active, with recovery among issues that had shown special weakness the day before.

News of the day played little part in this improvement. Word that the Associated Merchants and Dry Goods Companies had failed to take action on the proposed merger early, as the semi-official announcement that the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton might be expected to day to pay interest only on those bonds directly guaranteed by the Baltimore & Ohio. The Pere Marquette bonds guaranteed by the former are not so protected. The steps through which the Baltimore & Ohio took control of the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton and assumed responsibility for part of its obligation are at present under federal investigation. While no definite announcement reached the market, it is understood that the day's result will lead to divorce of the two systems.

Mexican stocks received further freedom. Overweight reports had mediators likely to adjourn without definite settlement and it was reported during the day that the Constitutionalists' reply to the suggestion of arbitration had been decidedly unsatisfactory. The tragedy in Austria was followed by serious disturbances that emphasized the difficulty of preserving a balance among the different races that make up that empire. European markets, however, continued steady and trading in this market for foreign account was insignificant.

The government's bulletin on crop weather gave the most encouraging news of the day, telling of favorable conditions generally throughout the country. The wheat harvest is producing satisfactory yields, with rapid growth of the spring crop. Corn met ideal conditions in the West and North. Through the southern portion of the belt it had been severely damaged by drought. Lack of moisture is affecting the late corn, though the early planting is making good growth.

Decreasing rumors which had failed to affect the market on Monday afternoon sent security prices considerably lower in the early trading. They failed to be substantiated, and a report of considerable delay in the rate decision was first denied and then felt to be not necessarily discouraging after all. The recovery was led by Southern Pacific, and the usual market leaders were generally bought and moved up together as they had not been in recent years. At the close of trading in London Paris took the greater part of the new gold of the week, export from New York having apparently ceased.
